Quick accurate hold over marks

The new Nighteater LRX Reticle uses everyday measurements to allow you to quickly and accurately range find and determine the correct hold over of your ammunition. Quite simply, the hold over lines in the reticle are set at exact inches. All you need to know is the trajectory or the amount of bullet drop of your ammunition. At 100 yards the distance between the centre and the first horizontal bar is 1 inch. The second bar is 2 inches. Then each bar is a further 2 inches at 100 yards. Hold over at other known distances is now easy to calculate. Full instructions and reference charts are supplied with each riflescope featuring the new LRX Reticle.
